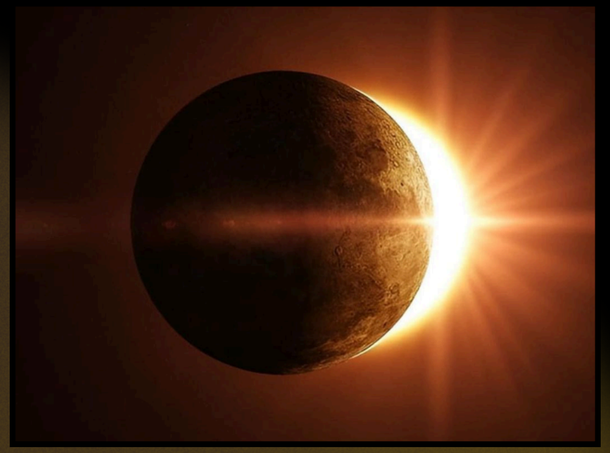
INTRO TO THE FRAGRANCE

ECLIPSE is a gender-neutral fragrance campaign developed for Revlon as a more modern version of its existing Fire & Ice product line.

Our campaign reinterprets Fire & Ice as a more fluid interaction where different elements merge and coexist intead of the stark contrast FIre & Ice used before.



The concept is inspired by the relationship between:

the Sun, representing warm energy, and visibility
the Moon, representing calmness, mystery, and introspection which come together in an Eclipse, symbolizing unity and transformation, and the gender fluidity of the perfume.

Top notes :
Bergamot & Pink Grapefruit

Main notes:
Lily of the Valley & Clary Sage

Base notes:
Vanilla, Sandalwood & Frankincense

STRENGTHS AND HOW WE AMPLIFY THEM

1. Strong brand recognition & legacy

Amplify by modernizing the image while keeping the heritage

2. Experience with influencer & social media marketing

Amplify by launching TikTok campaigns with micro-influencers

3. Strong use of visual aesthetics

Amplify by creating a distinctive sun vs moon visual identity

4. Existing credibility in beauty market

WEAKNESSES

- THE CONCEPT COULD BE CONFUSING.
- PEOPLE MAY THINK IT IS TWO PRODUCTS.
- THE SCENT IS NOT CLEARLY EXPLAINED.
- THE IDEA CAN FEEL LESS ORIGINAL TODAY BECAUSE MANY BRANDS USE CONTRAST CONCEPTS.

- THE CAMPAIGN DEPENDS A LOT ON THE MODEL AND THE VISUAL MOOD.
- WITHOUT THE IMAGE, THE PERFUME MESSAGE MAY FEEL LESS STRONG.
- THE AD SELLS A PERSONALITY MORE THAN THE ACTUAL FRAGRANCE.

OPPORTUNITIES

1. Ability to reposition Revlon as a modern brand, tailored to younger demographic is increasing our target audience.
2. Opportunity to collaborate with influencers/ up-coming artists and brands.
3. Revlon has the opportunity to build more interactive relationships with its customers through social media platforms

THREATS

1. Beauty industry is extremely saturated
2. Revlon usually markets with celebrity images and traditional beauty standards, while current trends prefer transparency
3. Revlon lacks visibility on social media
4. Younger audiences might see Revlon as an ancient brand
5. Comparisons to older campaigns

CREATIVE PROCESS

We started by researching what Gen Z audiences care about, especially ideas around:

- identity
- self-expression
- inclusivity

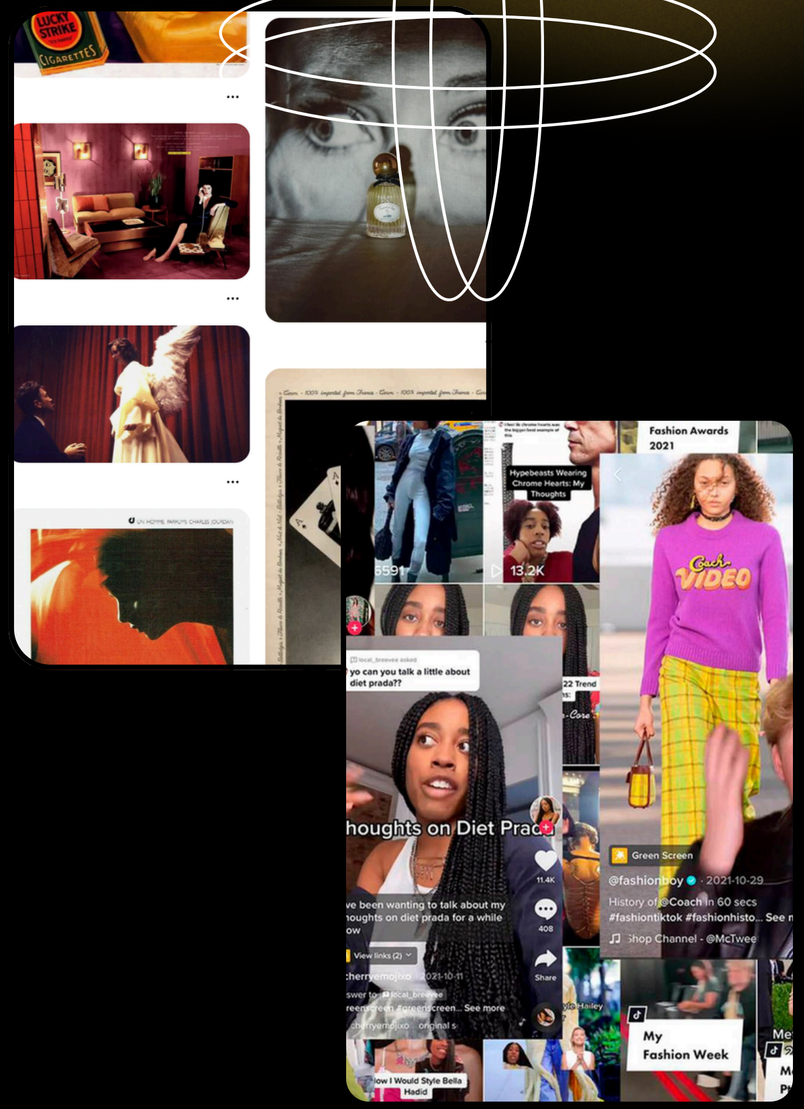
We also looked at how people engage with content on TikTok and Instagram, where:

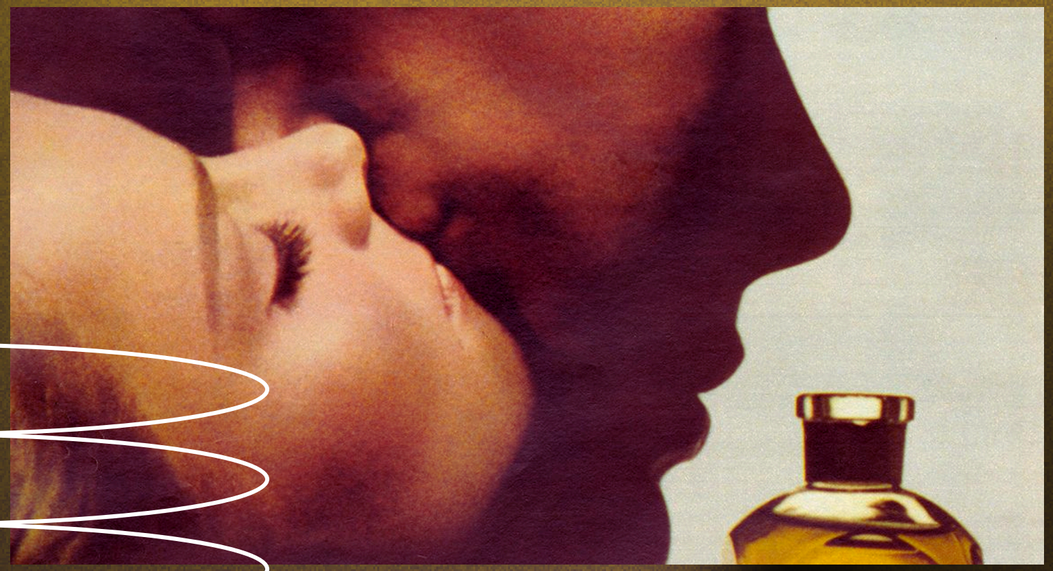
- visuals and mood are often more important than text
- storytelling is done through aesthetics

To develop our concept, we created:

- a Pinterest board to explore visual inspiration
- a Spotify playlist to define the mood and emotional tone

This helped us build a strong and consistent creative direction before actually designing anything.





ENCODING GENDER FLUIDITY

We represented gender fluidity through the idea of blending opposites instead of separating them.

The Sun and Moon are usually seen as opposites, and even linked to masculine and feminine ideas.

But in our campaign, we didn't keep them separate, we made them overlap and merge.

This shows that:

- identity isn't fixed
- people can have multiple sides at once

The "Eclipse" is the key symbol, because it represents:

- both sides existing together
- not choosing one over the other

CHALLENGES WE FACED

1. Limited equipment
We worked with simple filming tools, so we had to be creative with angles and lighting.

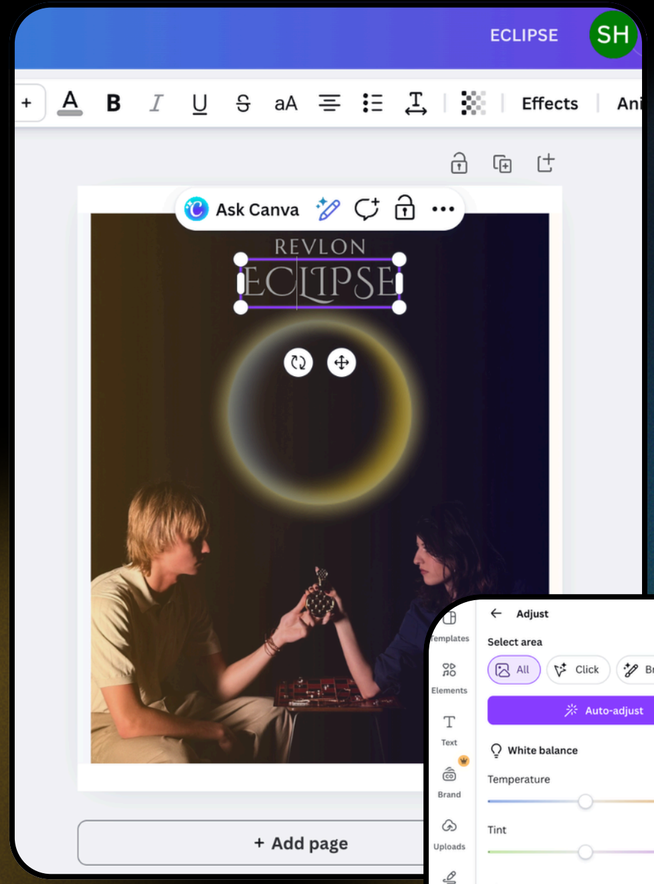
2. Time constraints
We had limited time to film, which made planning and organization important.

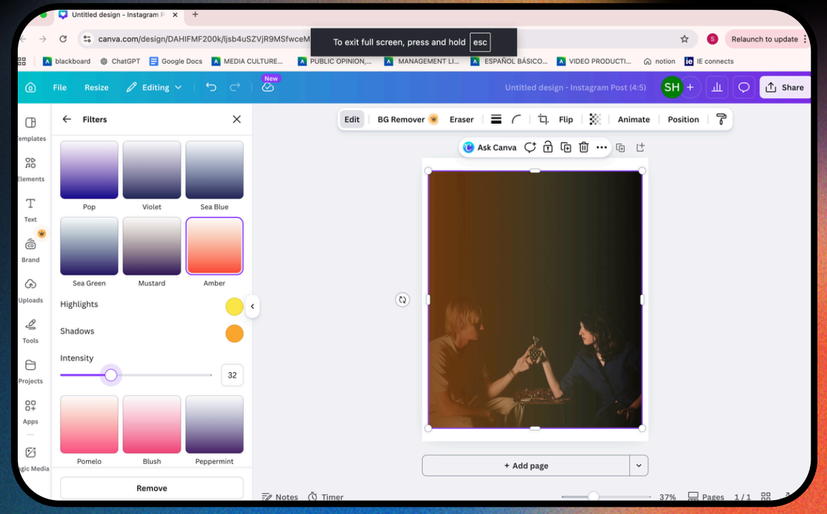
3. Lighting control
The dark/golden aesthetic was sometimes difficult to keep consistent.

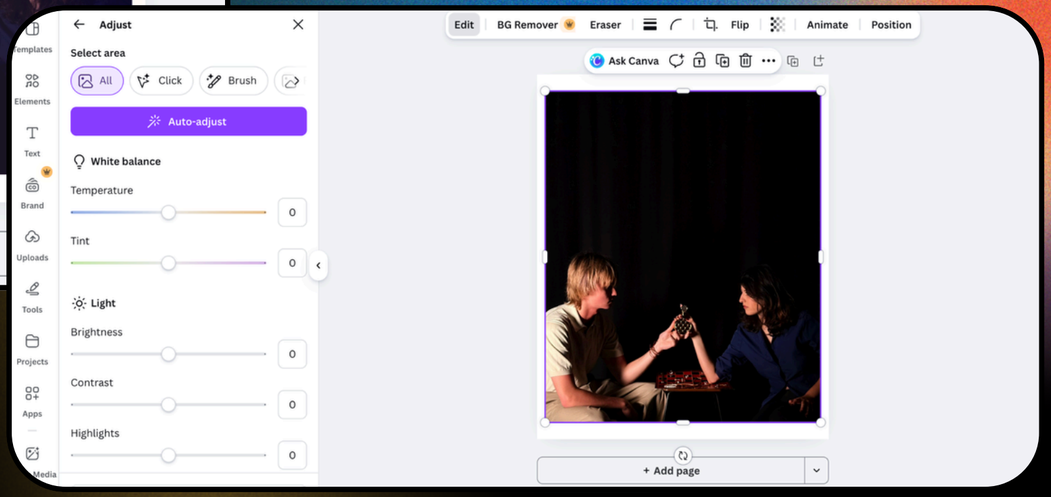
4. Acting and direction
As we are not professional actors, we focused more on mood and visuals than dialogue.

5. Editing balance
We had to make sure the final video stayed smooth, aesthetic, and easy to understand.

EDITING INSTAGRAM POST





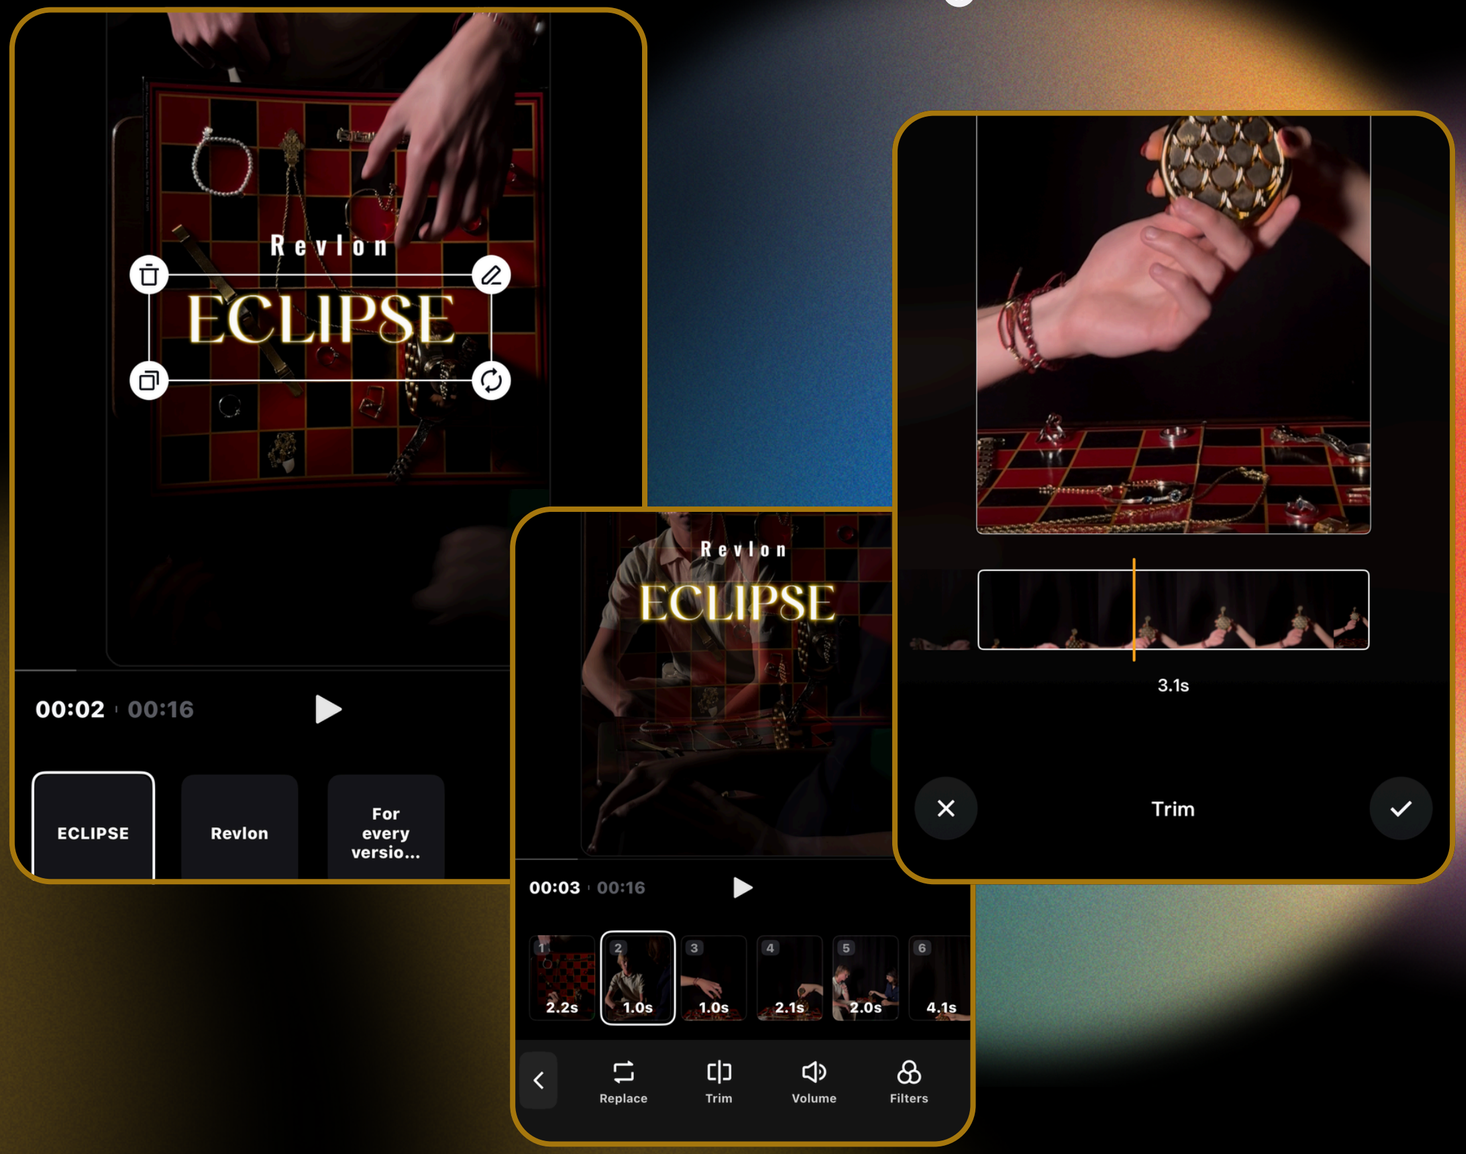


When editing the Instagram and TikTok posts, we emphasized the contrast between the sun and moon by incorporating

- warm yellow and cool blue lighting
- an eclipse symbol
- typography that reflects a mystical, nighttime aesthetic.

We carefully selected images that reinforce the fragrance's gender-neutral appeal by featuring both male and female models, while consistently keeping the perfume as the focal point.

EDITING TIKTOK POST



For the TikTok, we used footage captured during the photoshoot to highlight both the perfume and the subtle connection between the two models, reinforcing the fragrance's sense of balance and duality. Specifically, we:

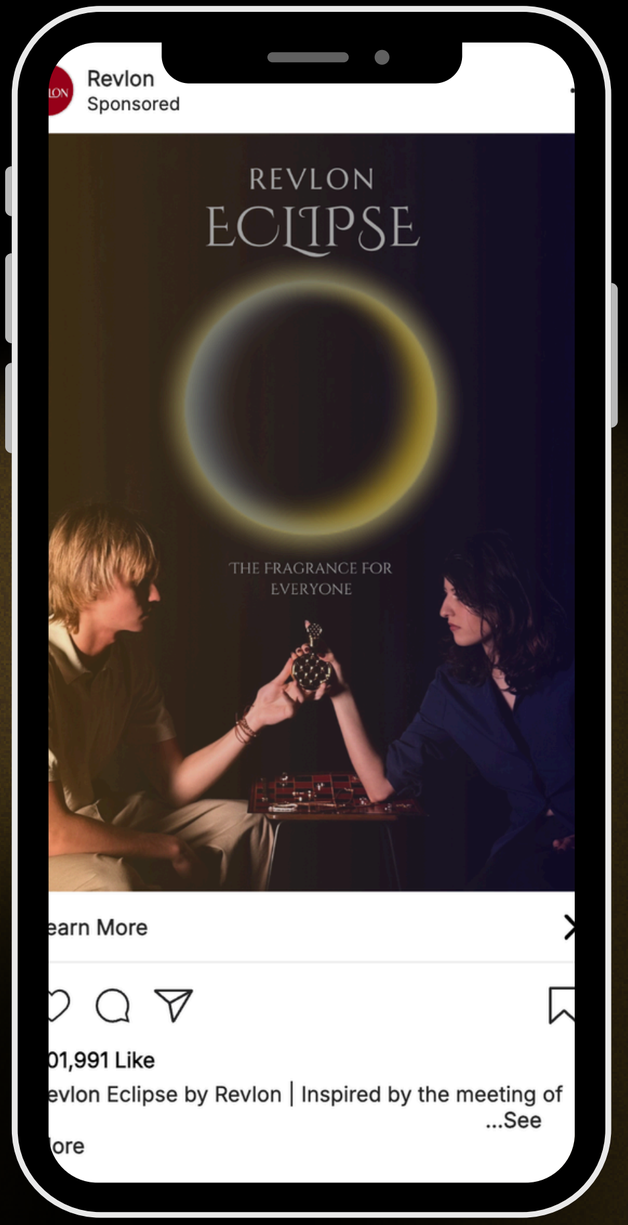
- Showcased the perfume as the central focus throughout the video
- Emphasized the connection between the two models to reflect harmony and contrast

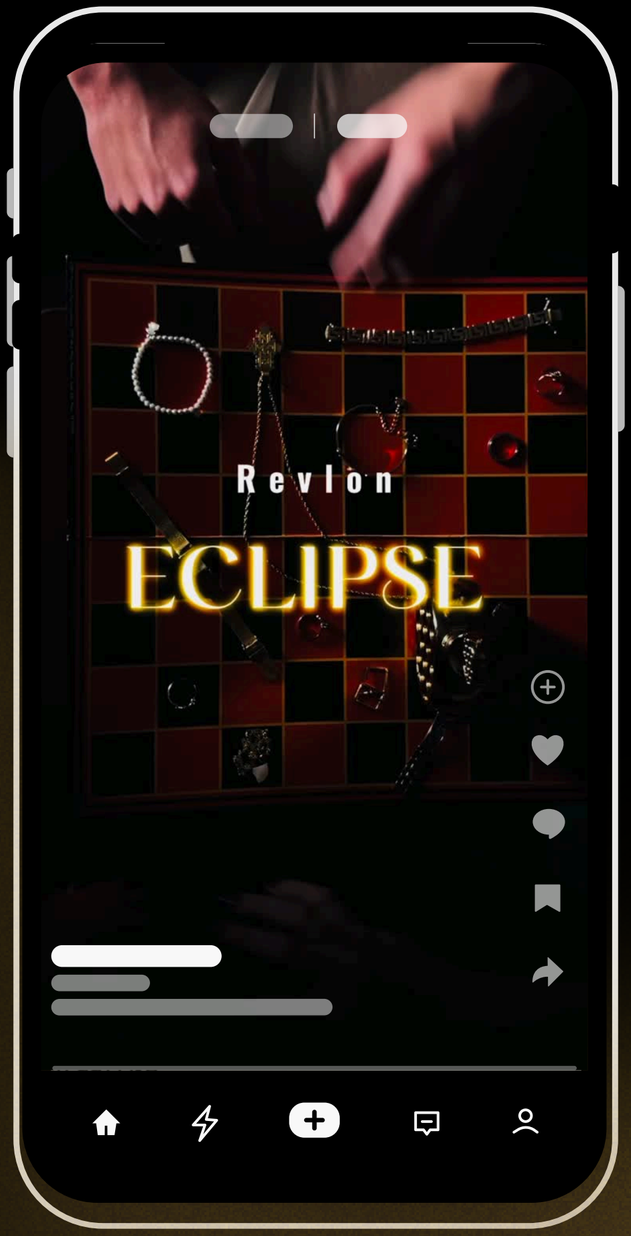
- Highlighted the chessboard and jewelery as a recurring visual element
- Used its black-and-red contrast with the Gold and Silver contrast to reinforce the duality theme

We incorporated the brand and fragrance name using bold, intentional typography to ensure they stood out. To finalize the video, we:

- Added the brand and fragrance name with striking typography
- Ended with the slogan "For every version of you," leaving the perfume as the final focal point

FINAL PRODUCT





THANK YOU!
